

Sean R. Goss

I have been around cameras my entire life, so photography came natural to me. Over the last 22 years my interest in the art of photography has only grown. I love sharing the way I see our world and bringing my vision to a final print. I have worked in the industry for the last 12 years managing camera shops and as a lab technician. I do have formal training as a fine art student at Bridgewater State College, as well as seminars put on by photographers and workshops. Throughout my career I have become an instructor and mentor to photographers trying to find their vision. My sister Tara and I now own a photo lab, Goss Photo, in Hanover Massachusetts.
